

REPUBLICAN NOW BEING ISSUED IN OUR PRESS ROOM

Largest Press in State Is Moved from Old Building As First Step in Occupying Modernly Equipped Home on Central Avenue

For the first time in a week, The Republican last night was printed on its own press, now in process of erection in the new home of The Republican at 114 North Central avenue. The work is sufficiently advanced for the first, or lower deck to be used, permitting printing up to 16 pages. The press will be entirely assembled within a week, and then can be used to its full capacity of 32 pages on one run, it being the largest press in the state.

The Republican takes this opportunity to express its appreciation of the courtesy of The Gazette, in whose press The Republican has been printed the past week. During the week the type has been set up, the forms made up, and the material prepared in The Republican's own plant, and the casting and presswork have been done at The Gazette.

The removal of The Republican's press from the old building at Second and Adams streets to the paper's new home necessitated taking it down and then re-assembling it. This work is in charge of Paul Helms and Jim Nolan, expert erectors brought to Phoenix by The Republican for this purpose, and is under the general direction of Jack Halloran, press room superintendent of The Republican. Assisting these are A. J. Karlson, of the Karlson and Hanson machine shops here, formerly with R. Hoe and company in New York, and John Miller, Ed Bates and Elzie McCulley of The Republican, as well as local helpers. The work started only a week ago yesterday, is now so well advanced that The Republican is able to print this issue on its own press.

During the week, owing to moving the press, The Republican has been forced to "boil down" news appreciably—probably to an extent without precedent in its history. The staff regrets this, which resulted yesterday morning in the fact that the big league baseball results had to be eliminated altogether. However, this difficulty is now overcome.

Hereafter The Republican will be printed on its own press in the new home of the paper, to which building the mailing room also has been moved. Other departments will remain in the old building for the present. However, in a month or more the new quarters of The Republican will be complete, and all departments will move to the new offices of the state's largest daily newspaper.

Tourist Uncovers Still

FLAGSTAFF.—Was it Wolfe or Montclair who stormed Quebec heights? Which ever it was, he was captured on Monday, by Sheriff Jack Harrington, who with Undersheriff W. A. Campbell and Deputies Billy O'Brien and Lee Smith, stormed Elden mountain, in skirmish line, on the word of a "conscientious tourist" (that's the way Campbell describes the informant) that there was a bootery up among the crags.

There was, for a fact. The officers found it near a spring, under a big rock. Copper still there was, and enough raisin and peach mash to make 25 gallons of brandy. There was no one in sight and the stuff was brought back to jail.

It must have been an awful shock to the poor guys owning the stuff when they got back to their baby distillery and found what had happened to their layout.—Cocconino Sun.

Crowds at Snake Dance

FLAGSTAFF.—Attended by a crowd estimated at 1,000, the largest ever at a similar affair, the famous annual Hopi Indian snake dance was held at Hotavilla village, on the Hopi Indian reservation, 115 miles northeast of Flagstaff, Wednesday afternoon. Many notables were present, including Mary Roberts Rinehart, the Saturday Evening Post writer; former Mayor Carter H. Harrison of Chicago; United States

Senator Henry F. Ashurst; Dr. Harley Stamp from the Smithsonian Institute; Richard Forsyth, caricaturist for the New York Herald; and James Swinner, editor of Flagstaff, cartoonist for the Hearst papers.—Leader.

Instructor Arrives

FLAGSTAFF.—Sgt. J. C. Macklin arrived yesterday from Fort Sill and will remain here, having been assigned by the war department to act as instructor for the Flagstaff battery of artillery. Macklin is a regular army man. During the world war he was a lieutenant, a member of the Sixteenth field artillery of the Fourteenth division. He saw one year and four months' service overseas. Macklin was to give his first instructions last night's meeting of the battery.—Leader.

YUMA.—Ten acres of cotton picked at the proper time in the fall from October 1 to November 1 may yield as much as 15 acres of the same cotton picked in January, according to the specialists who have been conducting farm studies in the South for the United States department of agriculture.

On a farm in Arkansas an acre of Boykin cotton harvested in the period between October 1 and November 1 was worth $152 for lint and seed. In January an acre of an equally good crop of the same variety was worth only $160. Express cotton at $32 per acre in October but in January the crop was worth only $112.

The result of delayed picking is chiefly in deterioration in grade and quality. For example in a case where October 1 cotton rated as "strict middling," November 1 cotton of the same variety rated as "strict low middling," while on January 21 the same variety classed as "good ordinary" only.—Morning Sun.

Shoots Assassin

TOMBSTONE.—A hit man, which was not reported to the sheriff's office until yesterday, occurred Sunday afternoon at Benson, when Lorenzo Besina, imported from Mexico to pick cotton, attempted to take the life of Earl Lemon, an immigration officer at Tucson. According to the finding of Sheriff McDonald and Chief Deputy Henshaw who went to Benson to investigate, it seems that Besina, who was brought in as a cotton picker near Mesa, escaped from the camp there and came to Benson, where he was preparing to go to work for the Apache Park company Sunday when he was arrested by Officer Lemon, who had been in pursuit.

The arrest occurred near the stock yards at Benson, and evidently the officer had failed to search the prisoner for without warning Besina turned on Lemon with a huge butcher knife he had concealed in his belt. The officer, who was armed with a .38 Smith & Wesson, grappled with him in an effort to get his gun. In the scuffle for the gun Besina was shot and died a few minutes afterward. He was buried Monday by the county. Lemon was exonerated from the crime by federal authorities, under whose jurisdiction the case comes, when the details were known.—Prospector.

PHONOGRAPH WILL NOT LEGAL

Baltimore people will hesitate some time before they follow the example of a citizen of Des Moines Ia., who dictated his will into a talking machine for the reason that under the Maryland law a will made in this fashion is not legal. The law in this state requires that signature of two witnesses to the will, which would be impossible on a phonograph, although they of course could dictate the contents of the will into the machine and have them thus recorded.

Judge Harry W. Nice of the appeal court today declared a will would not be legal. There would be no way of identifying the maker of the will except by his voice. Judge Nice pointed out, and at present there is no law by which the sound of a person's voice can be used as a means of identification, but at present he would not advise anyone to make a will in this fashion.

TO SPEAK OR NOT TO SPEAK

There is a great deal of difference between speaking because you have something to say and speaking because you have to say something. If our presidential candidates have something they are eager to say, the people will be eager to hear them. But we hope they will not allow themselves to be persuaded by newspaper, editor, or political managers to speak because they have to say something.—The Outlook.

REDS TRYING FLANK

MOVEMENT TO SEVER POLISH BATTLE LINE

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]

WARSAW, Aug. 28.—The Russians are endeavoring to drive a wedge to sever the Polish front, according to an official statement issued last night. Violent fighting is reported north of the Poles, counter-attacks at Sarnaki, where the soviet cavalry of General Budenny is trying a new encircling movement against Lemberg. An advanced soviet detachment has reached Tyszwowice.

In the region of Bobrka, 20 miles southeast of Lemberg, the Poles have repulsed repeated Russian attacks intended as a drive against Lemberg. The Poles counter-attacked at Sarnaki and smashed several soviet squadrons. Further south General Pavlovsk's Ukrainian army has forced the Dniester river in an outflanking movement against the soviet forces and is moving northward. There is weak contact with the enemy along the entire northern front from Grajevo to the north-west of Bialystok, to Wlodawa on the Bug river.
